

Maranatha News

OCTOBER 2026

FROM PASTOR LLOYD

²³ Let us hold fast the confession of our hope without wavering, for He who promised is faithful; ²⁴ and let us consider how to stimulate one another to love and good deeds, ²⁵ not forsaking our own assembling together; as is the habit of some, but encouraging one another; and all the more as you see the day drawing near. (Hebrews 10:23-25)

Dear Folks at Maranatha,

The above verses challenge us who are believers in Jesus Christ as our Savior to hold fast to our Christian faith. This exhortation then assumes that it is possible to not do so, and to instead drift away from beliefs that we once held.

I am convinced that the number of high school youth and adults, who are filling two classrooms at Maranatha in Glyndon during the Sunday School hour in the last couple weeks, are there because they are concerned about such a pattern happening in the lives of some of the people around them. The six-week series “The Deconstruction of Christianity” is delving into the reasons and the processes that folks go through in deconstructing their beliefs. Last week’s lesson spoke of the difference between Christians struggling with doubts and looking to God’s Word for answers, and folks looking to current cultural trends and their own feelings instead of to objective truth outside of themselves.

The above verses in Hebrews remind us of the significant value of being a part of the fellowship of believers that make up a local congregation. A pattern of assembling together with other believers is God’s plan for encouraging each other as we navigate life in this fallen world. It is as we gather with other believers, whether in small interactive groups or in the more structured setting of congregational worship, that we are continually pointed back to the truth of the Scriptures, which also then expose the lies of Satan that are so popular in our culture.

Besides the influences of popular culture in pulling folks away from the Christian faith, I think that an additional significant factor for some is a disillusionment with the organized Christian church. And some have good reason to be disillusioned, as many churches have drifted far from their foundational beliefs. This has resulted in some deciding that all organized churches are corrupt and that they don’t need to be a part of them.

Dietrich Bonhoeffer in his book “Life Together” points out another reason that some choose to walk away from church. He calls it a “wish dream.” Where Christians have definite ideas of what Christian life together should be like and try to realize such, but become disillusioned with the folks who make up their local fellowship.

Bonhoeffer states that “Only that fellowship which faces such disillusionment, with all its unhappy and ugly aspects, begins to be what it should be in God’s sight..... The man who fashions a visionary ideal of community demands that it be realized by God, by others, and by Himself. He enters the community of Christians with his demands, sets up his own law, and judges the brethren and God Himself accordingly.” You see how such a person thinks more highly of himself than he ought to think.

A Christian congregation is like a family. And in families we can be “demanders” or “thankful recipients” of the relationships that God has given us. We have a choice of which mindset we will have each day. Though we at Maranatha are far from a perfect congregation, I don’t know of any other congregation of which I would rather be a part. I am richly blessed to continue to live among you and to serve the Lord with you here. Let us continue to reach out together to folks that are needing the fellowship that we find together in Jesus Christ.
