JULY 2021

From Pastor Ryan...

" I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."
- Jesus (Matthew 16:18b)

One of the accounts I follow on Twitter has got me thinking lately. Whoever runs the G.K. Chesterton Daily handle (@GKCdaily) does a fantastic job of bringing to light the twentieth-century Catholic author & theologian in 280 characters or less. Granted, these quotes are completely devoid of their context – a broad context that spans more than 80 books, hundreds of poems, over 200 short stories (including the Father Brown detective series), and over 4,000 essays - but these quotes do get you thinking.

This is the quote that I've been meditating on for a couple of days:

> "The Church always seems to be behind the times, when it is really beyond the times."

The end of the twentieth and the beginning of the twenty-first centuries saw an explosion in the "church-growth" movement. This movement told the Church to stop looking like the Church and to look more like the world around her. We were told that we needed to be more "attractional" and "seeker-friendly" in order to draw in new people. To be successful, we had to stop preaching to people, stop telling them of their sin and their Savior, and, instead, begin to entertain them. Bring in better coffee, better donuts, a safe space for the kids to be dropped off at – and the people will flock, in droves, to your building. The Church, we were told, needs to think of marketing and branding, logos and color-schemes in order to better provide goods and services to the community. But – above all – if a church was to be popular and successful, the pastor better not be a shepherd - he (or if we're really gonna be with the times, especially in 2021, we should hire a "she" or "zee" pastor) ought to be a CEO and an entrepreneur, with the trendy haircut, fashionable jeans, and Twitter following to go along with it.

If we don't fall in line, we were told, the Church will be behind the times.

However, the Church is behind the times - and She is by design. She is, as Chesterton rightly noted, beyond the times.

The first reason that the Church is beyond the times is this: Being made up of God's children by faith, the Church – the body of Christ & His Bride – spans both time and space. The Church is, as we confess on Sunday mornings in the words of the Apostles' Creed, "the communion of saints." As we gather together in Jesus' name on Sundays at 101 Foundation Avenue, we are gathering together with the Church Universal. Our common confession of faith unites us with believers from the times of the Apostolic Age and Church Fathers, through the Middle & Dark Ages, through the Reformation & Enlightenment eras, and continuing on to the Modern era. Whether these believers are gathered in Africa or Asia, Australia or the Antarctic, Europe or the Americas – we gather as One Body, the Church. And for that reason alone, the Church is beyond the time.

The second reason that the Church is beyond the times is this: We've always recognized that this world is not our home. The author of Hebrews puts it this way: "For here we have no lasting city, but we seek the city that is to come." (Hebrews 13:14) Yes, it is good and right to work for the benefit of our city, state, and nation, and we are right to celebrate the freedoms we Americans enjoy. However, as members of the Church, we also know that this world will never be our permanent home. We are pilgrims in this world, seeking that which is beyond our time.

The Church doesn't need to conform to the times in order to stay relevant. She is relevant because our message – the Good News of the salvation won for us by Jesus – is timeless, it is beyond our time. The Church always has had a better answer to offer: We have hope in a hopeless world. We have direction in a society consumed with wanderlust. We have meaning and purpose while the world wonders, "What's the point?" We have a Savior. A Savior-King who loves you and gave Himself for you, and who will one day return and set all things right.

Amen. Maranatha.
